Back to $5 Minimum
The Ice Wagon Dies
Britain's New Worry

By Arthur Brisbane

Henry Ford announces restoration of the $5 a day minimum wage throughout his organization. This means adding 50 cents a day to the pay of 47,000 of the 70,000 Ford employees throughout the country now getting $4.50. Mr. Ford will have to pay $28,000 more in wages every working day, about $6,000,000 a year.

When the writer saw Henry Ford at Ft. Myers, Fla., a few days since, Mr. Ford was returning hurriedly to Detroit, because, he said, it was raining at Ft. Myers. There evidently was something else on his mind. Perhaps it was the addition of $5,000,000 a year to his payroll.

Mr. Ford says:

"No one loses anything by raising wages as soon as he is able."

Recent basement house fires in New York City have cost 37 human beings their lives. Such basement fires often fire traps. Some fires, according to police, were incendiary.

Why allow the owner to insure a fire trap, in which women and children sleep? Would not the owner be more careful about rubbish in the cellar, defective wiring, and other fire hazards, if fire meant a loss to him, instead of, in some cases, a profit? Absence of insurance would put an end to arson.

Delaware passes a law punishing kidnappers with death. Basil Banghart, called the "Owl" of Chicago's Touhy kidnaping gang, is sent to jail for 99 years. Three others of his gang associates, and Touhy himself, are under 99 year sentences.

John Factor, kidnaped by the Touhy gang, reveals "the mistake" made when they got him. He offered $50,000 "ransom," but they insisted on $75,000.

"They wouldn't be decent about it, they abused me for 11 days, kicked and beat me and threatened me with death. That's the reason I prosecuted them. If they had been decent, I would have arranged for a $50,000 payment, and kept my mouth shut."

That is one view of gang justice.

Five Touhy gangsters realize, with 99 year sentences, that crime doesn't pay, especially if you "refuse to be decent," and won't take $50,000 when it is offered.

In addition to the five, a sixth, Charles Connors, called "Ice Wagon," is dead, killed by gang companions, because he was tight-fisted. Mr. Schenckler, Chicago's chief of detectives, puts it thus:

"Connors had a roll, but didn't die."

Messing that the "Ice Wagon" had plenty of money, including $110,000 from a recent mail robbery, but refused to contribute to the defense of Touhy and Banghart. When "The Ice Wagon" was found, bullet holes in various parts of his body, police also noted a copper coin stuffed inside the glove that covered one hand, to indicate the murderer's opinion of his stinginess.

The real anxiety of Britain has now been to do with fighting power in the air. Britannia, as usual, is a wise old lady. She knows that "rolling the waves" is a losing game.

Norma as Church Worker Controlled Baby Fund

Mother Tells of Cure to Girl's Legs So She Could Walk

By MRS. MARGARET BRIGHTON
as told to PEGGY DOYLE

Although for eight years Norma was believed to be a sufferer from infantile paralysis, since she could not walk correctly and would frequently fall, it was finally determined that she had defective and undeveloped leg-muscles and an operation proved successful.

For months, she lay in a convalescent home at Wellesley after we had moved east. Then we moved to Brainard road, Allston, and Norma went to Mrs. Warren's private school in Roxbury.

It was when we went to Hopside, subsequent to this, that Norma became really active, assisting her father in the Federated Church. She did very well with the work for she had every facility for that type of activity—supervising the cradle roll of the church and directing various other church features for the young.

I do not like to dwell upon the events leading up to my divorce, but presently I was awarded the custody of the child—Norma.

DEENICE PRESSES OTHER MEN

Polar Expedition Ship Wrecked in Mystery Accident

Little America, via Mackay Radio, March 14 (Delayed, AP)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd's monoplane, carrying Lt. Comdr. Isaac Schlosberg, U. S. Navy, retired, and three passengers, crashed at 12:30 p. m. today. No one was seriously injured.

The plane crashed on 500 yards south of the expedition camp here. The plane had 120 miles of fuel, and the engine and instruments can be salvaged, however.

The plane had just taken off on a test flight preparatory to a flight toward the South Pole in company with the other expedition monoplane.

All suffered slight cuts and were severely shaken up, but otherwise unhurt.

The plane itself, a single engine Puker, was completely wrecked. The engine and instruments can be salvaged, however.

CANDY BANDIT GETS $1500

Arthur C. Austin, employed by the George R. Close Candy Co. in Cambridge, was held up and robbed at gunpoint of $1500 in cash and checks today at Broadway and Clark st., Cambridge.

Austin was on the way from the factory to deposit the company's money in the Kendall sq. branch of the Harvard Trust Co. and had only gone a short distance when he was accosted by a lone gangster who demanded the money.

Austin turned over the cash and checks, and returned to the factory to report the robbery.

Roosevelt to Aid Rushmore Work

Washington, March 15 (INS)—President Roosevelt has consented to serve on the national committee which will determine the character of the inscription to be carved on the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota.

This was announced here today by C. Gordon Rogers, the sculptor, who is carving the memorial. Mrs. Roosevelt will be the first to arrive here for a vacation.

What Is Sauce for the Goose Is Applesauce for the Gander

THE Democratic administration and its representatives demand that industry increase the number of its employees whether needed or not, and that it increase wage scales and salaries by increasing the per diem compensation.

The administration has a right to urge this method of increasing employment and adding to the purchasing power of the community; and if industry has been able to absorb the very recent increases in pay and shortening of hours, it should endeavor to comply with this governmental demand.

But the demand of the administration would come with much better grace and much greater force if the government itself were adopting the principal embodied in this requisition upon private industry.

The administration, however, is NOT following its own preachment.

It has REDUCED the wages of government employees at Washington.

It has CUT some 26,000 wage earners from the rolls of the Post Office Department.

IT has destroyed the airmail services of the United States and thrown many thousands of its pilots, mechanics and other workers out of employment by the conditions it has compelled.

Must private industry not only bear its own burdens of relieving unemployment but also absorb the unemployment which the policies of the administration create?

If the administration is going to establish regulations for industry under the NRA, should it not show its sincerity by making those regulations equally applicable to the operations of the Government?

It is easy for the Government to find the money

$10,000 Pearls Lost by Brookline Society Woman

Somewhere between the Boston Garden and her fashionable Brookline home, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, social regent, lost a 600-pearl necklace last night, she told Boston police.

Mrs. Greenough, wife of Henry V. Greenough of the Ladies Sales Corp., 50 Federal st., attended the Emergency Relief Campaign carnival at the Boston Garden last night and either there or on her way home she suffered the loss, she reported.

The necklace consists of 60 graduated pearls and one diamond in the clasp. Although she declared she felt the necklace slip on several previous occasions, she said that last night she had failed to notice its disappearance.

Because she took a taxi home, police are checking taxicabs in the vicinity.

FABER GRILL FOR ELY AS JUDGE SEES MILLENS

Schorton Plans a Call to Governor; Norma Worries for Murt

BULLETIN

Judge Nelson P. Brown, who will preside at their trial, went into Dedham Jail at 2 o'clock this afternoon to confer with Murton and Irving Millen about the dispute over their defense counsel. He said he intended to consult their wives and that he planned definitely to settle the matter today. He was followed to the jail by Clerk Robert B. Worthington of Norfolk Superior Court.

Gov. Ely was accused today of inflaming the public mind against Murton and Irving Millen and Abe Faber, alleged machine gun killers awaiting trial, during the course of his address to the Legislature yesterday on the subject of police unification.

The criticism was voiced by Faber's attorney, William R. Schorton, who said he expected to summons the governor as a witness at hearing of a new motion picture presentation of the trial assigned for a week from Monday.

Schorton's accusation was at about the time of an announcement that Judge Nelson P. Brown would personally interview the Millen brothers in Dedham jail in an attempt to get them to plead guilty and thus cut off the dispute which counsel and trial but 11 days away.

Norma Worried Over Murt's Plight

Murton's beautiful bride, Norma, is ailing and suffering a bout of pneumonia and a flowering plant in her own cell was reported to be such more worried about her husband's failure to obtain trial by jury than about her own prospects at a separate trial as a accessory to the Needham Trust Co. kidnap.

The report that separate counsel would be retained for Murton and Irving Millen was linked with an announcement that the governor would be called to the witness stand at the hearing of a new motion picture presentation of the trial assigned for a week from Monday.

NEW APPEAL IS SENT LINDBERGH TO PROBE AIR

COLONEL AS HE REFUSES POST

Agrees, However, to Be a Witness at Senate Hearing

New York, March 15 (AP)—Declining to serve on the committee named to study the army's operation of the air mail, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh reiterated his charge that the use of the army to carry the air mail was unfair to both commercial airlines whose contracts were cancelled and to the personnel of the army corps.

At the same time, Lindbergh agreed to give his views on permanent air mail legislation to a Senate committee.

The Senate committee on post offices and post roads reported receipt of the following telegram from the colonel:

"Will be glad to appear Friday." A telegram which Col. Lindbergh sent to Secy. of War Dern, who had asked him to serve on the committee with Clarence Chamberlin and Orville Wright, read as follows:

"I greatly appreciate the honor of your request that I become a member of a special committee to study and report upon army aviation in relation to national defense.

"I would, of course, be glad to contribute in any way that I can to the maintenance of adequate national defense. However, according to the announcement by the War Department, this committee is to study and report upon performance by the Army Air Corps in its mission to carry the air mail as directed by executive order.

"I believe that the use of the Army Air Corps to carry the air mail was unwarranted and contrary to American principles.

"This action was unjust to the airlines whose contracts were cancelled without trial. It was unfair to the personnel of the Army Air Corps who had neither equipment designed for the purpose nor adequate training for training in a new field.

"It has unnecessarily greatly damaged all American aviation.

"I do not feel that I can serve on a committee whose mission it is to study in following out an executive order the commercial air mail system of the United States.

Albany, March 15 (INS)—Drinking liquor at bars will be legalized, but the old-time back room saloon will be banned, under the permanent liquor control law to be enacted at the present session of the Legislature. It was predicted today by leaders of both major political parties.

Byrd Prophecy Of Mitchell Comes True

Washington, March 15 (US)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd once wrote that Brig. Gen. William Mitchell was from 10 to 20 years ahead of his time, but aviation is apparently catching up.

For now Gen. Mitchell is playing an important part in President Roosevelt's plans for reorganizing the air defense for the very same reason he was driven out of the army eight years ago—his advocacy of a unified air force.

In 1925, Gen. Mitchell was court-martialed for "insubordinate insubordination" in his campaign for a unified air force. A jury of generals found him guilty and he was suspended from the army for five years without pay.

This strange sentence left him in the army, but not of it. It kept him subject to military discipline, but relieved him of duty and compensation. He took the only air leave left open and resigned.

In a book written after his transatlantic flight, Admiral Byrd told of Mitchell's untiring activity in the air force and his own efforts to prevent such consolidation. Byrd acknowledged that aviation might prove advisable in some distant day, but he was sure that it was 10 to 20 years ahead of aviation.

In a long speech, the President placed full authority in the hands of the Industrial Recovery Administrator to deal with government contractors.

The order also requires all contracts and purchase orders authorized by any state, municipal corporation or corporation in connection with the construction of a building to be carried out, wholly or in part, with funds loaned or granted any agency of the United States.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 15 (AP)—One hundred CWA workers struck in the Eastwood section today after being informed of a reduction in pay from 50 to 40 cents an hour and a cut in hours from 30 to 24.

There are about 800 in the city CWA rolls.

In a long speech, the President placed full authority in the hands of the Industrial Recovery Administrator to deal with government contractors.

ARMY PLANS PROGRAM TO PUT AIR FORCE IN CONDITION

Washington, March 15 (AP)—In line with President Roosevelt's request for $100,000,000 to improve the army air service, the War Department issued a statement today saying the army forces should be reorganized, equipped and trained to meet any national emergency on 24 hour notice.

This strange sentence left him in the army, but not of it. It kept him subject to military discipline, but relieved him of duty and compensation. He took the only air leave left open and resigned.

What Is Sauce for the Goose Is Applesauce for the Gander

to pay salaries and to provide employment.

It is easy for the Government to find the money to INCREASE salaries and EXPAND employment.

All it has to do is to impose additional taxes on the already heavily burdened backs of the American people.

This the Government apparently does not hesitate to do with or without good reason and with or without beneficial purpose.

It is not so easy for private industry to find the income to bear additional burdens.

Private industry has no power to COMPEL the public to support it.

Private industry cannot maintain a perpetual deficit and issue bonds to meet it, or print new money to meet it.

BUT there is nothing to prevent the Government from piling up huge indebtedness, which the public must pay off eventually, whether it wishes to or not.

The Government, therefore, ought to be at least as strict in its adherence to the basic principles of the NRA as it asks private industry to be.

Of course in fairness to the Government, it must be said that it is employing great numbers of people at vast expense on public works and civil works programs; but it also must frankly be said that a considerable part of the vast sums so expended are being wasted through misdirection, through incompetence, through outright crookedness, and through the inevitable waste inherent in the hasty expenditure of large appropriations.

Would it not be better, therefore, for the Government to reduce somewhat the expenditure in the direction where there is so much waste and dishonesty, and to retain on the public payrolls, at LIVING WAGES, the loyal workers who served the country faithfully and skillfully for many years.

The Hearst newspapers cannot be considered to oppose the public works program.

In fact, it was the Hearst papers which first advocated a five billion dollar fund with which to build needed public works and to provide needed relief for the unemployed.

And if this amount had been appropriated in the beginning and spent when and where it was most needed, the depths of the depression could have been avoided, and a larger and more reckless expenditure later could have been prevented.

It is a singular thing in this connection that when the Cosmopolitan Corporation's moving picture, "Gabriel Over the White House," was produced, it was sent on to Washington for the inspection of the administration and for the benefit of any suggestion the Government might have to make.

This was at the end of March, 1933.

The only recommendation of importance made was that the amount of five billion dollars for public works—which the President in THE PICTURE was made to demand of Congress—be REDUCED, as such a sum was excessive and unreasonable.

The amount, therefore, was reduced to four billion dollars in the picture.

THAT was in the latter part of March. Six months later in the same year the administration was demanding of Congress TEN BILLIONS OF DOLLARS for public expenditure.

In such rather dangerous ways do extravagances grow.

What was considered excessive and unreasonable in the first months of the administration's term of office was considered inadequate by half before the first year of office had ended.

Government expenditure is definitely necessary in times of depression.

But that expenditure must be conservatively directed and distributed.

And what is more conservative, more legitimate, than for the Government to retain in its employment its own faithful and skillful employees, and to refrain from driving out of employment the faithful and skillful employees of private industry through drastic and ill-considered interference with private enterprise?

The policy of the NRA has a humanitarian purpose and should be supported as far as it can be complied with, but that policy should be a co-operative policy, a harmonious, helpful policy, not a policy dictated by Government to PRIVATE INDUSTRY and REJECTED by Government itself.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

SUPPORTERS OF UNIFIED POLICE PUSH BILL

Representatives of state organizations, with a membership of nearly 1,000,000 persons, will appear at a hearing before the joint Judiciary committee Monday to champion Gov. Ely's proposed measure for a unified State police.

However, members of this disinterested lobby are already hard at work and are tabulating names and addresses of legislators to be sent to constituents throughout the state to urge them to support the bill.

Three hundred women, representing women's clubs throughout the state, will meet at the Copley Plaza today and will receive the names and addresses of legislators in their home districts.

The Massachusetts Police Chiefs' Association, which has not greatly favored the bill, will meet with the citizens' committee for public safety in the latter of their offices today to confer on the measure.

Decided support for the governor's proposed measure has been gained through the inclusion of a plan contemplating the return of power to mayors of Boston and Fall River to appoint their local police commissioners.

Old Ironsides to Be Boston Museum

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Representative McCormack (D, Massachusetts), announced today he had been advised the navy department had ordered the USS Constitution returned to the Boston Navy Yard where it will remain for inspection of the public. The Constitution, which has been visiting the West Coast is now en route to the Atlantic.

Acting Secretary of the Navy E. L. Roosevelt today delivered to McCormack the following memorandum:

"The navy department has this day issued orders to the commanding officer of the Constitution to proceed directly to Boston after leaving Charleston, and the Constitution will be secured at the Boston Navy Yard where she will be open to the public. The Constitution should arrive in Boston in the early part of May."

McCormack and members of the Massachusetts Democratic delegation have held several conferences with navy department officials in an effort to have "Old Ironsides" returned to Boston.

Previously an attempt by Senator Trammell (D, of Florida), chairman of the Senate naval affairs committee, to have the Constitution decommissioned and left permanently at either Washington or Annapolis as a national museum or as a national museum, appeared likely to be successful.

AUSTRIAN PLAN AGREED ON BY ROME PARLEY

Rome, March 15 (AP)—A concrete plan for the economic independence of Austria was formulated today by Premier Mussolini of Italy, Chancellor Dollfus of Austria and Premier Gombos of Hungary.

While Mussolini conferred with the premiers, well-informed circles said Italy is opposed to the restoration of the Hapsburgs to the throne of Austria and Hungary.

Italian opposition to the restoration is based on several reasons, among them fear of creation of an Austro-Hungarian empire; fear that it would disturb the Austrian internal situation and stir the resentment of Germany and the little states—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

Italy will invite France, Germany and the nations of the little entente to join in the economic agreement of the tripartite conference, the Associated Press was informed by an unqualified reliable source.

Vienna, March 15 (AP)—Talk in quarters close to the cabinet of the return of Anton Rintelen, minister to Rome, was linked today with the possibility of some form of coalition between the Dollfus government and the Nazis.

MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT BEATS KIS WINE OVER NEW U. S. SHIP

FIRST VESSEL BUILT UNDER BLUE EAGLE

Crowd Sees Destroyer Farragut Launched in Fore River

Over the knife-sharp bow of the first ship constructed at Fore River under the Blue Eagle, Mrs. James Roosevelt, daughter-in-law of the President, crashed the first bottle of champagne used there since prohibition—and the destroyer Farragut was launched today.

A host of distinguished guests watched the launching of the 1500-ton craft as did several hundred spectators from the Weymouth and Braintree shores across the stream. Whistles from river craft abounded as Mrs. Roosevelt swung the net-corded bottle of champagne and pulled and the destroyer slid down the ways into the stream, to be pushed by four tugs into Pier 2 for finishing work.

The destroyer, named after Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, hero of Mobile Bay, is 90 per cent completed and is expected to begin her trial runs in April. Sister ships are now under construction at Bath, Me. and at other yards.

Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by her husband and his brother, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., freshman at Harvard, carried a huge bunch of American Beauty roses, gift of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

Also in her party were Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. John Cutler, of Dedham, and Miss Susan Wigginworth of Milton.

Others present included Mayor Charles A. Ross of Quincy; Capt. J. L. Baker, U. S. N., of the Submarine aviation base, and Comdr. Elliott Buckmaster, who will command the Farragut.

A luncheon for 100 guests was served in the office of the corporation and Mrs. Roosevelt was presented with a leather-bound book containing the remains of the champagne bottle, and with a gold-plated medal engraved in commemoration of the launching.

The Farragut is the third naval ship to be named for Admiral Farragut, the other being the old torpedo boat II, built in 1880 and destroyed, 20, built in 1917, and destroyed, 20, built in 1917, and destroyed, 20, built in 1917.

The new craft is 340 feet in length with a beam of 34 feet, and is powered with geared turbines and water-tube boilers of advanced design, enabling higher speed with more economic fuel consumption.

The plane left San Juan, Puerto Rico, at 4 a. m. and landed at San Pedro at 7:05. It took off a short time later for Fort-au-Prince, but the pilot was soon obliged to put back to San Pedro because of poor flying conditions.

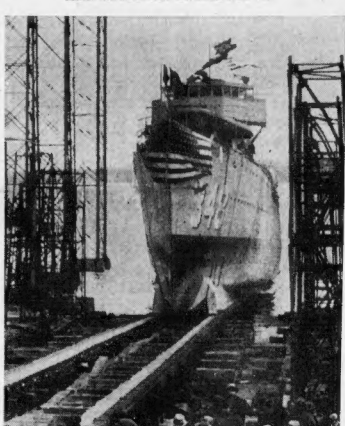

The journey to Washington from Miami was set for tomorrow so that the First Lady might be in the capital Friday for observance of the 29th anniversary of the wedding on Saturday, March 27.

The plane carries besides its passengers a large number of gifts presented to Mrs. Roosevelt in Porto Rico during her survey of conditions there and also many that she purchased for others. Her party includes Miss Lorenz Hickok, CWA investigator and newspaper woman.

$40 TAX RATE THREATENING, SAVES FOR GIRL DEATH

"False Cut" Charged to Curley in Plea for Bureau Merger

An excessive burden on the city payroll and a "false reduction" in last year's tax rate by former Mayor Curley, were cited as chief causes for the city's present financial predicament by Mayor Mansfield today.

Urging a favorable report on his bill to consolidate and rearrange departments without approval of City Council, the mayor declared before the legislative committee on cities and warned that Boston is headed for a $40 tax rate unless he can prevent it.

He declared that between 3000 and 4000 more employees are on city payroll than are on any other city of comparative size and circumstance. Backed by former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, City Councilman Henry J. Shattuck, Corporation Counsel Henry J. Foley and other prominent speakers, the mayor declared that where Boston now has about 30 city departments, other cities with modern characters are limited to about 15.

Directing his fire at the Curley administration, Mayor Mansfield charged that the city's highest tax rate of $35.50, two years ago, was the result of his predecessor's "extravagance and profuse glorification of the people's money."

He also declared that last year's rate of $32.50 was a "false reduction" accomplished by borrowing $700,000 and obtaining a federal loan.

"If that is the proper way to reduce the tax rate, all I would have to do would be to go out and borrow the entire amount necessary," he asserted.

The mayor said he is ready to assume all responsibility for departmental consolidation.

CREDIT IMPROVING

He said that the higher the tax rate, the more difficult is the collection. Some $200,000,000 is now outstanding in uncollected taxes, he revealed, and he thought that a $40 tax rate, or one between $35 and $40, will assure an increase in tax default.

Insult Eludes Police on Eve of Deportation

Athens, March 15 (INS)—Samuel Insull, Chicago utility magnate, has disappeared on the eve of his deportation from Greece. Mrs. Insull admitted today. The police immediately threw out a dragnet for the missing man.

A detective was stationed at Insull's apartment to guard against his leaving. How he eluded the guard has not been learned.

Two maid-servants were taken into custody for interrogation. A man servant also was held incommunicado.

HUGH CROWD GATHERED Insull admitted a search of the apartment had revealed no clue to his whereabouts or the direction of his departure.

Mrs. Insull and Mrs. Compson, one of Insull's friends, were taken to the police station for questioning.

A large crowd gathered outside the apartment house, where Insull once became known. Scores of Greek and foreign newspaper men and photographers were in the crowd, but the police refused them information.

There were hints that Insull had fled to some other country.

BROKER MORSE KICKED FOR GIRL DEATH

Edna Leavitt Beaten and Kicked, Doctor Tells Grand Jury

New York, March 15—After hearing the testimony of Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, medical officer, the New York County grand jury today quickly indicted Arthur W. Morse, Harvard graduate and stock broker, for first degree murder in the death of Mrs. Edna Field Leavitt of Brookline, Mass.

Dr. Gonzales testified there were many bruises and welts on the body of Mrs. Leavitt, who was found dying in Morse's Greenwich Village apartment after a drinking party, that he could not count them.

Dr. Gonzales made it clear that the young woman died from numerous bruises, not from any other fracture. He said that in his opinion she had evidently been kicked repeatedly as well as struck.

Prosecutor Cohn said Mrs. Leavitt's grandfather, William Altkin, son of Brookline, informed him the woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Field of Memphis, Tenn., are en route to New York.

Morse is held in Tombs prison without bail. He is to be arraigned tomorrow before Judge John J. Preschi.

Mrs. Leavitt died in Bellevue hospital early yesterday as the result of a crushed skull. She was found near death on a bed in Morse's Greenwich Village apartment, and he admitted there had been a quarrel between them the night before.

The young widow's body has been given over by her grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Altkin, of Brookline.

Roosevelt Has Cohen as Guest

Washington, March 15 (AP)—John S. Cohen, publisher of the Atlanta Journal, called upon President Roosevelt today. After the conference he said he had not been offered the post of chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The police would permit no one other than Cohen to leave the apartment without their permission.

Mrs. Insull answered the phone and, in an agitated voice, confirmed the fact of her husband's disappearance. Beyond that she refused to answer any questions.

"My husband has vanished," Mrs. Insull told International News Service. "I don't know when he left."

ORDELED TO LEAVE Insull was under orders to leave Greece at midnight tonight. He had been fighting for months for permission to remain in Greece.

Throughout yesterday a fruitless effort was made to get a visa for Insull's departure. No country, apparently, would receive for him, a two-billion-dollar financial empire.

Insull's disappearance was surprising to the authorities, because he had been in Greece in a precarious condition. He had declared at every turn that he was too ill to leave his bed.

There were hints that Insull had fled to some other country.

His gift, she stated, was a check for $100, which she sent to the wife fund for poor children in Germany.

Reports from Germany revealed that Carl Ouse, president of the newly organized Nazi national film chamber, had announced that Miss Dietrich had contributed a considerable amount to the chamber's welfare fund.

BISHOP'S FLOCK IN GAY COLORS AT GIRL TRIAL

Women Are Witnesses for Churchman in Mann Act Battle

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 15 (AP)—The faithful of his flock waited today to the defense of Bishop Charles Manuel Grace, head of the Negro religious cult, who is charged with violating the Mann act.

The pomp of an ambassadorial ball moved into the draft courtroom of Judge Marcus R. Campbell as uniformed members of the Church of Prayer for All People entered with their chief.

The bishop, from Charlotte, N. C., was dressed in brown with a rufous coat. The part in his flowing hair was a complicated geometric design.

One Mrs. Leavitt, 20, the government's chief witness, who has testified in accompanying Bishop Grace from Washington to Baltimore, had a trying time restraining her baby, which she has named Charles Manuel Grace, Jr., from making irrelevant and immaterial noises.

Defense Attorney Samuel Ostroff called three of Bishop Grace's followers, whose testimony was to the effect that the bishop was only spiritual adviser to his "children."

One Mrs. Solomon Lowery of Washington, declared that she liked "Daddy" Grace very much "as a holy man."

"You call him 'daddy'?" asked Assistant U. S. Atty. Gen. "Sure," she replied. "Daddy—you spell it d-a-d-d-y."

The described herself as the caretaker of a rooming-house at 31 Logan st., Washington, where she said, on the night of November 14, 1932, Bishop Grace, Miss Campbell and another girl stayed.

She testified that early the following morning she accompanied the bishop and the two girls on an automobile trip north.

The girls were left at the cult's church in Baltimore, she said. Mrs. Lowery's husband, died in a blue and gold uniform, and Mrs. Lowery, both residents of the Washington rooming house, testified that, when they saw the Bishop Grace and Miss Campbell occupied rooms in different parts of the house.

On cross-examination, Prosecutor Ostroff asked many questions about the expensive limousine the bishop uses.

Licenses Asked for Collectors

Some men now employed by collection agencies are "the scum of the earth," it was charged today by Asst. Atty. Gen. Frank G. Volpe of Middlesex county at a legislative hearing on a bill to license all persons engaged in the business.

Volpe said that persons in a "collection racket" in Middlesex county were related by Volpe, who said, that one man had been in court 25 times.

SAAR VOTE AGAINST LEAGUE TO SOUND WAR DRUMS

Coal Mine Section, Steeped in Strife Over Chancellor, Is Powder Keg of German-French Relations

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Saar, a tiny speck of land lying between France and Germany, may furnish one of the danger spots of "World War Come." H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the twenty-eighth article of his series. If they vote for Hitler—as seems certain—the residents of the Saar will remove that territory as a cause of war but if they should vote against him that strip of land may easily become one of the chief reasons for immediate hostilities.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent. Copyright, 1934, by International News Service. Reproduction in Whole or Part Forbidden.

Saarbrücken, March 15 (INS)—The Saar is a speck of land seven-tenths as large as the smallest American state, Rhode Island. It lies between France and Germany. It contains 16 billion tons of coal and 823,000 people. In 1935 they will vote for or against Hitler. The way they vote may decide whether Europe will go to war sooner or later.

If they vote for Hitler there will be no war over the Saar. If they vote against Hitler the Saar could move up to place number one in the list of possible causes of war on this continent. The chances, estimated in this capital city of the Saar today, seem to be better than 90 per cent that a majority of the population will vote for Hitler. But not only the election contains the possibility of serious trouble, the campaign may prove just as dangerous.

It has just begun. A huge Swastika banner floats down from a house on the main street of Saarbrücken. In the window of the house Adolf Hitler looks out from a picture that frames him as a saint. Next door a bookshop flaunts a cartoon that frames him as the devil. Crowds from the Nazi camp trade glances with crowds from the anti-Nazi camp. The Nazis call the anti-Nazis traitors. The anti-Nazis call the Nazis beasts. They are ready to mutilate each other today. By the time election day comes they may be ready for murder. If murder starts, French troops may be asked to keep order. If French troops come, if French troops have to shoot, what would Germans do? All of the worried in Europe none are more anxious today than the Saar authorities.

Adolf Hitler was unknown to the makers of the Treaty of Versailles. When the paragraphs concerning the Saar were written, the present chancellor of Germany was a lance corporal, but demobilized, and casting about Munich for a political job.

Saar Territory Given to France

So the treaty makers wrote that because the German army had destroyed the coal mines in northern France, the Saar coal mines should go to France. The Saar territory would cease to be a part of Germany for fifteen years. It would become a customs and currency unit with France. It would be governed by a commission of the League of Nations.

The mines would be counted as worth 300,000,000 gold marks on the sum Germany owed France for reparations. At the end of fifteen years the population would vote. If they voted to return to Germany, France would resell the mines to Germany at a price fixed by an French, one German and one neutral expert.

Every person above twenty years old and who had lived in the Saar at the time the treaty was made, will be asked to answer: "Do you want the Saar to remain as it is, under the government of the league, and in common union with France?" or "Do you want the Saar to become a part of France?" or "Do you want the Saar to return to Germany?"

Until January 1933, the result of this plebiscite was a foregone conclusion. In the whole Saar there are perhaps 3500 French employees of the mines and a scattering of other French families. German is the only language heard. The architecture, food, atmosphere, people are emphatically German. Ten minutes' motorcar ride away the hotels in France serve bouillabaisse and wine. Here they serve haberdash and beer. The distance from Saarbrücken to the French border is a step but that step measures all the distance between the Latin and the Teuton.

Until January, 1933, it was anticipated that at least 85 per cent of the population would vote for Germany. France knew it. She did not expect to have the Saar. In 1930 Stresemann, having persuaded Briand to evacuate the Rhineland ahead of time, had persuaded him to give up the Saar also. But Stresemann died. And three years later Hitler came. Immediately the 100 per cent German population of the Saar divided on the Hitler line.

Thousands Seek League Jurisdiction

Today nobody of any importance in the Saar is campaigning to make the Saar French. But thousands are campaigning to make it stay under the League. Their campaign is hot and bitter. It is not better and more bitter than the campaign of the Hitlerites to return the Saar to Germany. On their side the Frenchmen have a heavy advantage. "Traitors" they cry to the position, "can't win in the long run. If you vote against your Fatherland, wait until the Saar is German again and see what happens to you."

Reaction day is already called the day of reckoning. Every issue of the anti-Hitler organs makes it plain just what "reckoning" may mean. Every description of the life in a Nazi concentration camp is meant to persuade the voters to choose life under the League. But in the dead of night, under the blankets, comes the thought: "What if I vote against Germany and my side loses?"

On the Swastika side are 15,000 young men who have been to Germany and have been trained in the so-called "labor service camps." They have returned first-class, disciplined storm troopers. By election day it is estimated there will be 25,000 of them, very good ballot box watchers.

The Swastika side is united. Against them the opposition to Hitler is as variegated and divided as France in Germany. The Hitlerites, marching under the so-called "German front," use the audacious propaganda that proved so successful in the Vaterland. They boldly announce:

"We will get 90 per cent of the vote."

The anti-Hitlerites modestly declare: "We have a chance to get a majority."

Von Papen Sees Menace to Peace

Not only Hitler, but certainly the League itself, and probably most of Europe except France, would welcome it if the Saar today could be turned over to Germany, the rights of its political minorities be secured, and the secondary economic question of the reparations price of the mines agreed upon. Hitler has demanded it.

Vice-Chancellor von Papen, Reich's commissar for the Saar question, has declared that if the Saar were to be retained by the League it would be a serious menace to peace.

This is obvious, Germany would never be reconciled to losing this plainly German territory. Of all the mistakes in the Versailles treaty, none has turned out to be more serious than the Saar. At the time it seemed a sensible way to recompense for lost destroyed coal mines.

Today it seems a potential danger of the first magnitude to negate the possibility of war at a moment when France has given every indication she does not want war. If she wished a provocation for the preventive war she could arrange for it in the Saar overnight. Without wanting it she may get it.

If by any turn of fate, the Saar should after all vote against Germany, the results would be incalculable. As one diplomat put it it would be a catastrophe. Social-Democrats here say that if Germany gets the Saar she will use it as a springboard to leap into Alsace-Lorraine.

Blow At Hitler's Power Is Desired

Today the French are still holding the Saar as a card, but it has become a deuce. Germany is virtually certain of winning a majority vote. Yet Hitler would like to avoid the possibility that a considerable number of Germans outside of the immediate power of the third Reich's instruments of political persuasion might vote against him. He would like the promise of regaining the Saar earlier than the treaty provides.

The anti-Hitlerites would like to prove their strength, and they and the French would like to deal a blow at Hitler's prestige. Neither achievement would affect the ultimate issues between France and Germany. For the sake of a price at their opponent the French appear willing to allow a genuine political cause of war to develop into a menace for the whole world. They say cannot abandon the political minorities in the Saar to the mercy of brown-shirted storm troopers.

That, however, will be the problem of the League. Already the League's special commission is working on a treaty to be offered to Hitler. He would guarantee the lives and limbs of his political opponents here. Whatever guarantees are given, the Saar will certainly discharge into France a flood of refugees when the Reich takes control. Tomorrow there will be no "preventive war."

CAMBRIDGE, REVERE PUPILS ENROLL FOR SPELLING BEE

100,000 Scholars Now Eligible for Title in Greater Boston Contest; Washington Trip Is Prize

School systems of Cambridge and Revere were the new winners yesterday into the Metropolitan Spelling Bee sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

These, with a full week before the first of the simple tests to be conducted in the school rooms of Boston and vicinity, more than 340 schools, with nearly 100,000 eligible pupils, are awaiting the first test.

There is every indication that 100,000 schools will be enrolled within the next three days, as applications for enrollment blanks pour in. The Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser appreciate the prompt enrollment of the public and parochial schools of Greater Boston since it expedites arrangements involving printing and other details of the vast educational enterprise.

However, so simple is the arrangement of the actual bees, held in the children's own school rooms, that words contained in their own reading books, that preparation for the oral spell-downs requires less than an hour actually.

For the prompt enrollment of the schools, the fairer, efficiency and generous reward for achievement involved in the annually approved educational contest it is to be hoped that none of the school managements will refuse the school children the elementary grades of this opportunity.

In the tests which are to take place in all enrolled schools of Boston and all cities and towns within its radius of the City, the champions of each grade in each school will be determined by spelling tests. Winners will be presented with a handsome copy of Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, and a certificate of merit recording their achievement.

THE WASHINGTON SIDE SHOW

Washington, March 15.—The administration is planning its hope of permanent peace in Cuba largely as the old rule for housebats—put approval of this government has been given a clause in the proposed Mondetta constitution which provides that when difficulties arise, between capital and labor, a seven-day lapse must ensue before a strike can be called.

This lapse is demanded simply as a "cooling off" period, the purpose of which is exactly the same as the old amendment to children and others of hasty temper, to "count ten" before doing what the emotion of the moment suggests.

President Roosevelt and his advisers, all of whom realize the po-administration, who ever held a press conference at which this not a single announcement was made nor a single question asked.

For does this mean that the press is to any way apathetic about foreign affairs. But the reporters early discovered that Hull is an uncommunicative man, that he considers long before making any announcement of importance, and that generally those announcements come out through some other source, quite often from the White House.

Both Money Men
 Add resemblance which dwindle on better acquaintance: Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. and Governor Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve Board, seen walking arm in arm from the treasury to the White House for a conference with the President they might easily be taken for father and son. They both have clear cut, faintly aquiline features, clear blue eyes with laughter wrinkles at the corners, and they each wear the official dress of each country.

Neither Q's Nor A's
 Secretary of Rilla Cordell Hull in probability the only cabinet officer, certainly the only in this lightly you're going to stay there. For instance, presidential nominations this week raised to the rank of brigadier general four colonels who until recently were major generals. They had held the high rank in connection with four-year appointments as department heads. At the end of the four years they reverted to colonels. They don't complain though, for once having held the rank of major general they will get the pay for that rank when they retire.

They can be seen dashing around the broad south grounds, making puppish attempts to shake a jelly bubble of new bird arrivals from the south.

NORMA MILLER'S BABY FRIENDS CLOCK

By MRS. BRIGHTON

Norma and Clarence—and I began to earn my way assisted by the money which the law decreed I should receive. Clarence was a hard worker, and I was a hard worker, and we were both very disappointed in our lives.

Blames Home for Wrong Influences

I made every effort to keep my family together but circumstances were too much for me. It seems to me that I am the only one considering the terrible catastrophe that has fallen upon my beloved Norma, but I may say that my son, Paul, died, my twins were buried in Alton, and when I was confined in the Massachusetts General Hospital I had to relinquish the care of my living children.

To be perfectly frank, one of the principal elements in my desire for a divorce was that the children were subject to my derelict or constantly varying influence in Mrs. Brighton's home. He was all together too lenient in many ways and to others was tremendously abrupt and domineering. For years the children were uncertain as to what the actual attitude might be regarding any course of conduct on their part. Mr. Brighton is an old man in many respects, but I know that he is lacking in tenderness and sympathetic understanding and the children, unaware of why they suffered under his implacable attitude.

When circumstances compelled the children to return to their father's home, an entire shift of attitude developed. Norma, I know definitely, found life there irritable and confusing. Repeatedly, she ran away and came to me for advice and comfort. She was never permitted to have young people to visit her, even though she knew many nice youngsters and was a very popular girl. She was required to be home before 9 o'clock. There and other restrictions simply ruined the normal routine of the child who was heart-broken, high-spirited and beautiful girl.

It is a fact that never in her life did Norma enjoy any possession anybody, nor was she ever disturbed about what type of clothing she had—and I can assure you that many times it was quite shabby for so lovely a girl. But she did enjoy happiness and good home and she took the utmost good care of herself, but when restrictions imposed by anyone else, particularly her father's, interfered with her liberty and love of laughter, a great depression would settle upon her.

Then she would seek me out, willing to make any concession, but I would not treat her with a single consideration. I will not go into the details of my many heartbreaks which came to me through my earnest desire to have my children with me and my constantly thwarted efforts to bring that desired situation about. But I must not omit my own agonizing state of mind as I refused to provide with her ongoing needs of money. Constantly I hear her beauty reassured by the new beauty and those who discuss her slight or her nature with me. The beauty of her face—despite all the sad aspirations cast upon her—is infinitely less than the beauty of her true inner nature.

Mother Doubts "Vicious Character"

Definitely she knows right from wrong. Definitely she knows trouble she has evaded wrong and abided right. Are we to believe that in nineteen years of virtue in its finest sense, under stress of unhappy circumstances, she concealed a vicious character which was developed to the highest degree of ruthlessness and crime in a period of four months as the wife of a bad or misguided young man?

For nearly three of those months, I, my daughter's closest confidante, know that she was tearfully unhappy on repeated occasions. Curious regarding the whereabouts of her husband later in the night, and hopeful that this marriage, in which money during those months was very scarce, would prove happy after all. Constantly she asked me to put in a good word with her I could to anyone who might have radio work to be done at Alton's shop.

Tomorrow Mrs. Brighton will discuss a brief period of small trials in the troubled life of her daughter, Norma Brighton Miller.

Friend's Gift of Cigarettes Makes Norma Happy

By RUTH MCGILLIBEE

Some knowing person sent cigarettes to Norma Miller and now the accused bride is smoking to rest her jagged nerves and jumpy discontent, as she whistles away the dragging hours in her jail cell.

The first woman ever granted permission to smoke in her cell in Dedham jail, Norma Miller, today finished the first package in the carton gift of a favorite cigarette brand.

When the jailer brought the carton of "fags" to her, he first queried her as to whether or not she had the habit.

All excited and feverish with interest, she opened wide her luminous eyes and asked, "why."

CLAPS HANDS IN GLAZE

And there the guard brought forth the 10 "packs" of smokes. Norma clasped her hands in rapture, it was reported, and then just as quickly fell into despair.

"One, that's great!" she told the guard, "but what's the use? They won't let me smoke, will they?"

The quick expression in her eyes touched the jailer and while not keeping her in suspense much longer he told her to go ahead and smoke in her cell, that she had the permission of the jail authorities.

"What a break," Norma was quoted as saying, "I sure need to smoke. My nerves are pretty much jaded after these many days in here."

And without much ado, she opened a package and the guard lit a cigarette for her. She smoked it with the same puffing away, happy at last that there was something to do to assuage her emotional unrest.

"Who is this charming benefactor who has my welfare at heart?" she asked the jailer.

GIVER IS MYSTERY

But he could advance no information, other than that the outside delicacies, the cigarettes and the flowers she received yesterday continue to be brought in from an unidentified philanthropist.

Permission to smoke in her cell is not unusual. Prisoners awaiting trial are accorded privileges which convicted inmates are not entitled to. Since the accused bride has yet to stand trial for the state's charge against her, she was granted the smoking privilege.

However, she is the first woman in Dedham jail to be permitted this favor. At the jail it was said she smoked most of a whole package.

FATHER LOOKED ASKANCE

I remember when Norma was free and at the Natick cottage of her father a few weeks ago, she took little of her time and gracefully pulled away. Her ministerial duties looked askance at her actions.

Norma looked at him wonderingly, as if he pained her that much, she told him.

But knowing how nervous and jittery his daughter was after her experience in the New York hotel lobby when police officers fought it out with her husband, Morton, before taking him into custody, he oriented and told her to go ahead.

But not before, he informed her that his "little girl" never touched cigarettes until she met and married Morton Miller.

Jailers revealed that Norma enjoyed the cigarettes much more than the delicacies that had been sent into the jail from the outside.

Norma's smoking privilege is not to be restricted. She will be allowed to smoke as much and as often as she chooses in her cell. It has become almost the daily topic of gossip conversation among the women inmates as to what next "the princess of the jail" will receive. And it was revealed that the feminine prisoners are bettering among themselves on the next effort of kindness from the outside by mysterious philanthropist.

Two days ago he sent food fit for an Emperor. Yesterday afternoon he sent chrysanthemum plant-fuchsia flowers of charming design. Last night he sent the carton of cigarettes. What today?

Question has the women prisoners guessing almost as much as it has Norma.

Several times she has pleaded with the jail attendants to ascertain the identity of her Prince Charming, but jailers told her it was not possible.

WRITING IS BANNED

She explained to them her earnest desire to write a note of thanks to him. But that wouldn't be possible, either, she was told, since neither pen or pencil is allowed her.

Unofficial report that Bernard J. Killian, prominent lawyer and defense counsel at several noted murder trials, would represent the brothers.

Scharton, whose previous efforts caused a delay in the trial of the three men charged with slaying two Dedham policemen have resorted in failure, issued the following statement criticizing the governor this afternoon:

"I was amazed to read that the governor of this Commonwealth, in an address before the Legislature, handed his remarks principally upon a case which is pending before the courts of this state."

"I am goodly unbeliever that a man as good a lawyer as Gov. Ely should add his voice to the infaming of the public mind against these defendants."

"I am securing an official copy of his remarks, made yesterday, and I expect to summons him as a witness when I appeal to Judge Brown again for a continuance or postponement of this trial until the public mind loses a part, at least, of its infaming."

"There are about 13 unsolved murders in this state. Recently a young man, Henry and Duden, died in the electric chair after being convicted of the murder of a gas station attendant."

"If Gov. Ely needed any case to illustrate his arguments, he could have referred to them, rather than to the case of the men who will shortly be on trial for their lives. It was a rash statement and, in fairness to my client, cannot be let pass without protest."

Scharton did not say to which portions of the Governor's address he referred. The Governor, in support of the bill for unification of police, told the Senate and House:

"The series of bank robberies, theater holdups, the stealing of guns and ammunition, have greatly weakened the sense of security of the people. The apprehension, skillfully carried out, of some of the apparent perpetrators of these crimes has served as some manner of reassurance to the public."

Lawyers in Visit to Judge Brown

Announcement that Judge Brown would visit the Millers in Dedham jail was made by James H. Phibbrick, an attorney associated with the defense, who appeared at Dedham courthouse a short time after a report that he and MacKusick had enlisted the aid of Clarence Faber for the defense in the case of the Millers.

He said he and MacKusick had visited Judge Brown at his Dedham home and discussed the details over counsel, and that the judge had agreed to visit the jail and talk with the Millers in an effort to straighten out the tangled situation.

Phibbrick appeared confident that he and MacKusick would continue as counsel for one of the brothers, but that a decision in court might appoint counsel for the other.

Judge Brown himself appeared at Dedham courthouse in the early afternoon. On file there were several new motions by the defense. While the contents of these were made public by the clerk, Scharton previously had announced he would appear in court for the attorneys and a change of venue, plus a separate trial for Faber.

MacKusick had said he would again seek a postponement and might ask for fees to employ psychiatrists.

The Life of Our Lord--By Charles Dickens

CHAPTER THE EIGHTH Part Two

ONE night, at that place, he rose from supper at which he was seated with his Disciples, and taking a cloth and a basin of water, washed their feet. Simon Peter, one of the Disciples, would have prevented Him from washing his feet; but our Saviour told Him that he did this, in order that they, remembering it, might be always kind and gentle to one another, and might know no pride or ill-will among themselves.

Then, he became sad, and grieved, and looking round on the Disciples, said "There is one here, who will betray me." They cried out, one after another, "Is it I Lord!—Is it I!" But he only answered, "It is one of the Twelve that dipeth with me in the dish." One of the disciples, whom Jesus loved, happening to be leaning on His breast at that moment listening to his words, Simon Peter beckoned to him that he should ask the name of this false man. Jesus answered "It is he to whom I shall give a sop when I have dipped it in the dish." and when he had dipped it He gave it to Judas Iscariot, saying "what thou doest, do quickly," which the other disciples did not understand, but which Judas knew to mean that Christ had read his bad thoughts.

SO Judas, taking the sop, went out immediately. It was night, and he went straight to the chief Priests, and said, "what will you give me, if I deliver him to you?" They agreed to give him thirty pieces of Silver; and for this, he undertook soon to betray into their hands, his Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

The feast of the Passover being now almost come, Jesus said to two of his disciples, Peter and John, "Go into the city of Jerusalem, and you will meet a man carrying a pitcher of water. Follow him home, and say to him, 'the Master says where is the guest-chamber, where he can eat the Passover with his Disciples?' And he will shew you a large upper room, furnished. There, make ready the supper."

The two disciples found that it happened as Jesus had said; and having met the man with the pitcher of water, and having followed him home, and having been shewn the room, they prepared the supper, and Jesus and the other ten apostles came at the usual time, and they all sat down to partake of it together.

IT is always called The Last Supper, because this was the last time that Our Saviour ate and drank with his Disciples.

And he took bread from the table, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to them, and he took the cup of Wine, and blessed it, and drank, and gave it to them, saying "Do this in remembrance of Me!" And when they had finished supper, and had sung a hymn, they went out into the Mount of Olives.

There, Jesus told them that he would be seized that night, and that they would all leave him alone, and would think only of their own safety. Peter said, earnestly, he never would, for one. "Before the cock crows," returned Our Saviour, "you will deny me thrice." But Peter answered "No Lord. Though I should die with Thee, I will never deny Thee." And all the other Disciples said the same.

Jesus then led the way over a brook, called Cedron, into a garden that was called Gethsemane; and walked with three of the disciples into a retired part of the garden. Then he left them as he had left the others, together; saying, "Wait here, and watch!"—and went away and prayed by Himself, while they, being weary, fell asleep.

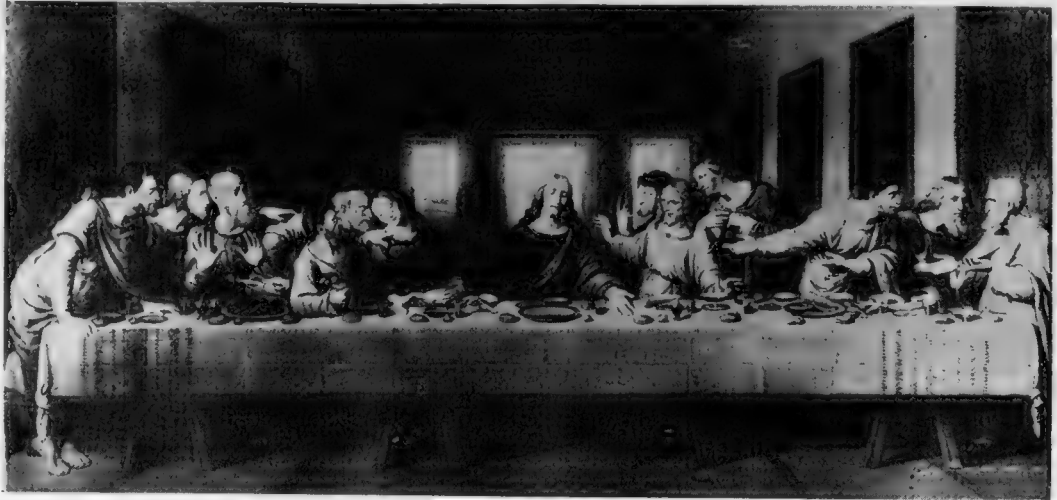

And Christ suffered great sorrow and distress of mind, in his prayers in that garden, because of the wickedness of the men of Jerusalem who were going to kill Him; and He shed tears before God, and was in deep and strong affliction.

When His prayers were finished, and He was comforted, He returned to the Disciples, and said, "Rise! Let us be going! He is close at hand, who will betray me!"

WHEN CHARLES DICKENS VISITED BOSTON IN 1842

IT was in 1839 that Charles Dickens, then a youth of 27, decided to take a trip to America.

He had already written several successful novels, and was casting about for material for further books. He saw in America possibilities for material in its rough, unwholeness.

So after turning the matter over in his mind for a couple of years, he definitely made up his mind to make the hazardous voyage, and on Jan. 3, 1842, "I opened the door of, and put my head into, a 'stateroom' on board the Britannia steam-packet, 1200 tons burthen per register, bound for Halifax and Boston, and carrying Her Majesty's mails."

So Mr. Dickens describes his embarkment for the wild and woolly shores of America, with a satirical pen which never once lost its sarcastic venom during his trip through the States.

Reaches Boston

AFTER touching at Halifax, the Britannia docked at Boston, and Dickens, along with his wife, Kate, and his omnipresent, delicately poisonous pen, debarked and settled down to life in New England for a brief period.

Boston, all in all, was not so bad. It was still civilization, much as Dickens had known it in England. It was not until the young novelist set off for the "great west"—Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and such frontier towns—that he began to encounter those elements which left him with the permanent bad taste set forth in "American Notes" and "Martin Chuzzlewit."

Of Boston, he said, "The city is a beautiful one, and cannot fail, I should imagine, to impress all strangers very favourably. The private dwelling houses are for the most part large and elegant; the shops extremely good; and the public buildings handsome."

He recorded the Bostonians as genteel and hospitable. Much, indeed, like the English. He was particularly impressed by a young blind girl named Laura Bridgman, an early Helen Keller.

Lowell, Mass., visited just after Boston, proved equally satisfactory. Dickens was much impressed by the working men's and women's condition there, and remarked with surprise the presence of "joint stock pianos" in many of the boarding houses.

At Worcester

FROM Worcester, the itinerary of the writer and his wife followed along the Connecticut river through Hartford, then to New Haven and then to New York. It was a leisurely trip and the couple spent four days in the town of Hartford, where they saw and recorded impressions of the "famous oak in which the charter of King Charles was hidden."

New York, too, was not so bad. "Was there ever such a sunny street as this Broadway?" he asks, and "No stint of omnibuses here! Half a dozen have gone by in as many minutes."

After visiting the Bowery, the Tombs and other points which took his fancy, Dickens traveled to Philadelphia, "by railroad and two ferries."

Visits Washington

IN Philadelphia, a few impressions of a fair and quiet city were completely overwhelmed, in Mr. Dickens' mind, by the dreadful specter of the Eastern Penitentiary, where the "cruel and wrong" custom of solitary confinement was adhered to.

From this point, Mr. Dickens' impressions of America got steadily worse and worse. Washington he saw as "the headquarters of tobacco-tinctured saliva," though the decorum of the Senate and the President of the United States impressed him favorably enough.

Liked Negroes

FROM Washington the itinerary followed through Richmond and Baltimore, and then back to Harrisburg. Dickens gleaned considerable amusement from the antics of the Negroes of the south.

From Harrisburg the writer and his wife traveled across the Alleghenies to Pittsburgh, which was then a part of the "real west." The quaintness and crudeness of the mountain folk of Pennsylvania, first amused, then irritated Dickens' sense of refinement.

In Pittsburgh, Dickens remained three days—March 30, 31 and April 1, 1842. His sensibilities shaken by the trip over the mountains, Pittsburgh did not stir Mr. Dickens' esthetic senses. Of it, he says, "It certainly has a great quantity of smoke hanging about it, and is famous for its iron works."

Cincinnati was next, and a little better, in Mr. Dickens' eye. Perhaps the voyage down the Allegheny in a steam boat had lulled him back to an appreciation of the country's scenic values. Anyway, he characterized Cincinnati as "a beautiful city; cheerful, thriving and animated." At Cincinnati there was a temperance convention in progress, and the author got quite a kick out of the parade, in which, "The banners were very well painted, and flaunted down the street famously."

Out West

FOLLOWED, Louisville and St. Louis. During the trip, Dickens made his acquaintance with an Indian chief, the Kentucky people, and the Mississippi. A short way into the "prairie" from St. Louis, "we halted at a place called Bellevue," Dickens said, and there we met a Dr. Crocus, who astounded the genteel Englishman by announcing he had no intention of ever returning to the "Old Country." Mr. Dickens just couldn't comprehend this.

From St. Louis—the western limit of his journey, Dickens returned to Cincinnati, Columbus, Sandusky and Cleveland, and there boarded a boat which carried him to Niagara Falls. Niagara brought this from his startled lips: "I could see an immense torrent of water tearing headlong down from some great height, but had no idea of shape, or situation, or anything but vague immensity." From Niagara, Dickens took a brief jaunt into Canada, then back to New York and boarded a ship, late in June, for England.

HALE DAUGHTER TO PLEAD FOR HIS PAROLE

By FRED PERKINS Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Concord, N. H., March 15.—Olive Hale, practicing attorney in Buffalo, N. Y., and daughter of former banker Arthur M. Hale, will plead for her father's parole as she pleads for his freedom during his trial, it was learned today.

The young woman will appear before Gov. John G. Winant and his council on March 28. She was one of her father's defense committee and pleaded for his freedom when he was convicted of misappropriation of $30,000 of the Narragansett River Savings Bank of Manchester nearly two years ago.

NEW FIGHT PLANNED

Atty. Robert C. Murchie, chairman of the State Democratic Committee and counsel for Hale, was by no means disheartened by the action of the governor's council in rejecting Hale's plea for parole, and said that he has other plans. He would not, however, admit that he knew of Miss Hale's coming.

There are five members of the council and three of them decide themselves unilaterally opposed to granting Hale. The latter has served nearly two years of his three to five year sentence, and under New Hampshire law would be eligible for parole on April 27.

HALE PLEADS IN FIGHT

The petition for Hale has set the entire state agog, and has sharply different political factions involved. Roughly, the northern part of the state would free Hale, while the southern portion, in which lived the 21,000 residents of Manchester, would oppose it. Hale is absolutely opposed to such action.

SILVER BOOST PLOT HINTED

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The Treasury's investigation of speculative silver holdings was said today by Treasury Morgenthau to have shown some advocates of higher silver prices "were not entirely disinterested."

Morgenthau made this statement to newsmen just after discussing the silver question with Chairman Eilers and others of the House committee.

Morgenthau said he hoped for their change in the government silver policy at this time.

"What was the purpose of the investigation—to find whether silver advocates were personally interested?" the secretary was asked.

"Yes," Morgenthau said. "We found some were not entirely disinterested."

Morgenthau declined to discuss the investigation further or to mention any names. He said the report might never be made public.

WAR' DESERT CLUB SHOW

Young Quincy Women
Resent Criticism by Mrs. Nichols

Cocktails or no cocktails: war or no war—the annual show of the Quincy Women's Club must go on, despite the withdrawal of three leading members of the cast.

Three large gowns were left in the dramatic personae when, as a climax of the "cocktail war" between the junior and senior women, Miss Jean Graham, Mrs. Ethel M. Munroe, chairman of the dramatic committee, and her sister-in-law, Miss Dorothy Munroe, withdrew.

The withdrawal was in protest against criticism by Mrs. Franklin S. Nichols, senior club president, of the slipping of cocktails by the younger women before club functions.

At first it was announced, following the withdrawal, that the show would be cancelled, but today it was announced that the three places had been filled and it will go on.

Because his conscience bothered him for committing a crime for which another man was serving a jail sentence, Michael Marinovich, 35, of Adams st., Brockton, today confessed to robbing the A. B. Brady multiphase store, West Elm st., in 1933.

Alexander Chapman, 25, of 65 Waltham road, South End, was sentenced to six years in state prison for his case before the governor for parole.

Today Marinovich voluntarily went to Brockton police headquarters and gave Detective Lyons, Inspector C. J. Erving and Sheriff C. St. Thomas a written confession.

Marinovich was later arraigned before Judge Towse, and made no plea. His case was continued until tomorrow and he was held in $2000.

'Poor' Woman's Estate $52,000

Worcester, Mass., March 15 (AP)—After making a diligent search for the reputed hidden wealth of Mrs. Emma T. Brown of Fall River, Worcester, special administrator of her estate, today filed an inventory in Probate Court showing the woman had approximately $52,000 when she was found dead in apparent poverty on Feb. 21.

The inventory lists her personal estate at $50,160.63 and property at $1,839.47. A total of $52,000.10 was found deposited in banks and discovered through the house.

Evacuation Day and St. Patrick's Programs at So. Boston

South Boston residents were waiting tonight, when their four-day combined celebration of Evacuation Day and St. Patrick's Day will get under way.

The four-day program opens tonight at Hotel Bradford with the Annual Evacuation Day banquet. The largest attendance in years is expected at this affair, judging by the advance sale of tickets. Chairman Edward J. Carroll has completed an interesting program to accompany and follow the dinner.

GOVERNMENT INVITED

Gov. Ely, Lieut-Gov. Bacon, Mayor Mansfield and other dignitaries of city and state have accepted invitations to attend the affair. Richard J. Dowey, acting as toastmaster and Daniel J. Lynch, member of the governor's special committee, will be the principal speaker.

South Boston itself has been at night in holiday garb for the celebration. The red, white and blue of the United States and the colors of the Irish Free State predominate in the decorative bunting but the famous green of Ireland is also conspicuous.

A large group of workers were busy yesterday removing snow from the principal streets to assure good footing for the marchers in the annual parade Saturday. By nightfall the streets along the parade route had been cleared and the promise of favorable weather had the entire district looking forward to Saturday's celebration.

DOG TAG SAVES LOST GIRL, 3

Through the license tag on the collar of the dog she "kennied" with police today restored a three-year girl to her mother just as the latter was about to organize a search.

The girl was found wandering along the banks of the Charles river near Northburgh park, by a CWA worker. With her was a little spential dog. At the Riverdale station of the Metropolitan police, the girl could tell her name.

Police noted the tag number on the dog's collar, and called the city clerk's office in Newton. They were told the dog was owned by Lawrence D. Reichle, 21 Malvern ter, Abundance.

Police called the Reichle home. They owned the dog, but neither of Mr. and Mrs. Kahn Perlin, 241 Lexington st., Abundance, next door neighbors. Little Jane often played with their dog.

FIVE WORKERS DROPPED AT LONG ISLAND

Hospital Head Denies Radios Silenced to Save Cash

The sharpened axe of municipal economy appeared headed to head on the axe of two of the city's steamers today and deprive 17 men of their jobs.

The new rumor of curtailment of steamer service came on the heels of the discharge of five employees at Long Island hospital who requested that four more resign their posts.

Despite formal denial of any such plan by Institutions Commissioner Frederic A. Washburn, the report persuaded his department will sell the steamer George A. Hubbard, its up the Stephen O'Meara and use the Michael J. Perkins, now at Deer Island for hospital and house of correction work.

'CHICKE'S DAUGHTER' -- By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER 31

Pippin sat in her car outside the library, waiting for the night of Wednesday night. She felt white, her muscles ached. She was afraid to tell Sherry, afraid of her ability to deal with him, but very determined.

He came swinging along like a wild thing, his arms outstretched, his head thrown back. He looked into her face, his eyes shining with a mad, desperate light.

"I wonder why you're so good, so meek, Pippin? I don't quite get it."

He took her place at her side, giving her hand a little squeeze. She said in a tense, thin, throaty voice:

"I've got to talk to you, Sherry. Let's drive out in the hills."

They parked. Pippin gave a little nervous laugh and, reaching over, took Sherry's hand. In her hand, she felt a little of the man who had been so kind to her.

"I don't know how to tell you this, Sherry. I wish you'd help me."

"You sound awfully serious, Pippin."

"I am, rather. It's about Vivian. I don't want to tell you, but I must. I haven't a cent in the world. I've got to get through here somehow. How in the name of heaven can I get married? Even if we were still in love with each other, and we're not, I don't see how we could marry."

For a long, wretched two hours they sat there and talked. Pippin felt young and pitifully lonely. Finally, Sherry said:

"What do you think I should do, Pippin? You have some idea, don't you? I think you should marry Vivian. It could be arranged that you should get money somewhere."

"Pick it off the palms, I suppose."

Pippin said:

"I have a little money, Sherry. I could get my mother to stake you to a start. I'm absolutely certain I could do this."

SHERY STRUGGLES FOR A SOLUTION

He turned around and looked at Pippin as though she were a damned person. Then, with a few furtive condenses:

"Could you probably take up a collection here on the campus for me? I'm sorry, I didn't mean that. But you don't face facts. Even if you could get this donation, do you think I could go blithely along telling your mother, 'support me, a wife. That's madness. There's only one thing that any sane person can do—get out of it as decently as possible.'"

Sherry leaned down and with both hands tore at his bright, thick hair.

Pippin saw the fixity of his purpose. She said, better:

"Don't you think I should make a terrible mistake, Sherry. Vivian is the most attractive girl on this campus. She has the best soul. You'll never meet a woman who has a live you more, perhaps you'll never meet one you'll love as well."

She went on, rather: "I know a man, Sherry, who was once in your position. He loved a girl like Vivian and ran out on her. . . She made good. The man is done; he's whole life in pieces."

Sherry caught her hands and shook them. He said, wildly:

"My life has gone to pieces. I'm through—right now. If I marry Vivian, we'll have to starve, stay right in a hard, mad, reckless way, with the tears streaming down her cheeks. Then the laughing broke into unreasoning sobbing and she closed the door."

When she returned, her face was clear, freshly powdered, her hair combed.

"Now that's over. I feel much better."

Vivian sat motionless, only her hands clenching more tightly. After a while she said, quietly:

"It's all strange. Like a nightmare. You wonder when you're going to wake up. I wish I hadn't told you, Pippin. I hadn't meant to do this."

"You had to tell someone."

Vivian gave a little gesture with her shoulder—gave a little desperate smile.

Pippin said sharply:

"Pippin! What are you planning?"

"I'm not planning at all. I'm only looking at the thing. . . With me—now—well, there was a quiet about her—a still finality. The blood went flying from Pippin's head."

"You're a chemistry class at 1 o'clock, haven't you, Pippin?"

"Yes, but there's plenty of time."

Then Vivian went up and put her arms about Pippin's waist.

"You're worrying about me, Pippin. Please don't do that. Sherry will go for a ride. It's a lovely day. I'd like to stand up there on the hill near that tree, Pippin, and have the wind blow in my face."

Pippin looked at her, and Sherry's step in the hall. Then she went to the bedroom, gathered her books and ran a comb through her hair.

PIPPIN FRAMES DEBARY OF VIVIAN

Vivian stood at her side. She was laughing.

"It's lovely here, Pippin. It's red in the sunlight."

Vivian touched it. She let her fingers rest lightly on Pippin's shoulder.

"I'm feeling much better now. I'll get out of it all right."

Pippin rested on the comb. She said:

"Others have come out of it, Vivian. They weren't as strong as you are. They weren't as brave."

And Vivian with a laugh: "And they didn't have a friend like you, Pippin. I'm sorry I've troubled you. I thought I'd manage it all so differently."

She stooped and kissed Pippin. She laid her cheek for a moment against Pippin's face. She said softly: "Go to bed, dear. Don't worry about me."

Pippin's heart widened. She glanced up and saw the stars. "I think quiet in Vivian's eyes. There she was afraid now—desperately afraid. She took off her apron, dropped it abruptly on the stool, her whole being focussed on one thought.

"I've got to do something. She told me. It's up to me!"

She was placidly aware of Vivian's slowness; Vivian's stark, unanswerable need.

But she felt helpless. There wasn't any way for her to help her innocent child to Helena. Perhaps in all the world Helena alone could be of help. Driven and with the blood dashing in hot spurts to her cheeks, she went down the corridor and called her mother to the phone.

Vivian said: "Thanks. You're precious. If I can't get by alone, I'll try that, Pippin."

Pippin said: "I'll be back as soon as my class is finished."

"Don't hurry. Sherry has a car. We'll go some time."

She followed Pippin to the back porch and called softly:

"Pippin, goodby!"

In the midst of her chemistry class, Pippin recalled the tragic, frightened, terrible alone look in Vivian's eyes. The way her eyebrows slanted upward made it so pouring, made it hard like a cry in the heart. Pippin placed her fingers in a rack, watched them intently, trying to ignore the sudden thump of her heart.

Then she was remembering Vivian.

Pippin's hand shook. She applied lubricant acid. It had a sharp, cold smell.

Sherry lent against the bureau. She said: "I'm not going to marry her."

She repeated this to herself and suddenly she remembered that Vivian came out to the porch and called with that unusual gesture.

"Pippin, goodby!"

Mr. Boston Says:

DeGlane After George Reveals Mat Plans Liquor and Music

By JACK CONWAY

HENRI DEGLANE, heavyweight wrestler, is back in Boston after four months spent in France. "I wrestled half a dozen times while in France," said DeGlane. "Jeff Dickson has been singing most shows in Paris, and they have drawn well. Dan Koff also did some wrestling in Paris. I had broken the night I lost my title to Ed Don George at the Garden had hauled properly. I prefer to fight in splendid condition again, and would like to meet George."

"I have signed to meet East McCready at the Garden a week from Friday night. I shall fight McCready, and then go after George. The champion cannot very well refuse to give me a match. If he does, he will lose prestige."

"I have been in America only a few days, but I am feeling much improved. Liquor helped. Prohibition was a very foolish thing. Even music will benefit by the legalized sale of liquor. I have always liked to attend the 'Pops' at Symphony Hall. I prefer to sit down with my music, and now I can have my wish gratified."

"YOU WILL note I am in good condition. That is the result of training and a careful diet. I even cook my own meals. I am then sure I have a good supply of food. Arthur Fiedler, famous orchestra leader, tells me I am a very excellent cook. He has eaten at my apartment frequently."

"I am glad to hear Jim London is wrestling for Paul Bowser. If I beat George, I shall sign to defend my title against London. I was always willing to meet London, but the latter would not wrestle under the direction of Bowser when I was champion. Bowser was always friendly to me, and I would not break with him."

DeGlane confessed he is still a barborer. When he returned to France, he was reported he intended to get married.

"I shall give all of my attention to wrestling until I win back the title," declared Henri. "Then I may get married."

Jessie Costello, Boxing

DICK DUNN, with a flair for publicity, will have Mrs. Jessie Costello from Massachusetts as a ticket seller for the Vince Dundee-Al McCoy 10-round bout at Mechanics Building on March 22. Dunn announced Mrs. Costello will appear at Boston's City Quins tomorrow at Hefferan's drug store, Salem on Saturday, at the Quins arena on Monday, at Jerry Burckley's Gori on Tuesday and at Mechanics Building on next Wednesday and Thursday.

"Of course," said Dunn with a smile in his eye, "the Dundee-McCoy show did not need any stimulation. I did not hire Mrs. Costello for publicity purposes."

It was Dunn who staged the Almer McPherson revival at the arena with Mrs. Costello taking a leading role.

Mrs. Dunn's red-headed boy is destined to go places. Meanwhile, Mrs. Costello will get some money which she can probably use.

THE GOODWIN A. C. announces it will throw open the balcony at the Worcester Arsenal-Six Hunsley arena show on next Tuesday night.

Malina is expected to arrive here today, and work out a lot of the local gym. Jimmy Lyle will have the backing of upstate fans when he meets Jackie Davis of Buffalo in another round bout on the Goodwin A. C. card. He has engaged in some first-class matches in Hoboken and Hartford rings. Johnny Rossi of Worcester will square Jose Rodriguez on New York in the semi-final of eight rounds.

GROVE SUFFERS HIS FIRST SORE ARM

SARASOTA, Fla., March 15 (AP)—Lettie Grove, Red Sox southpaw ace, is suffering from the first sore arm in his baseball career. He worked out for about 30 minutes yesterday and after practice reported to Trainer Doc Woods that for the first time in his eight-year career he had a sore arm.

Manager Jimmy Harkin says there is no reason to believe Grove's 3.00 in Philadelphia. With three games left, the Cubs are in second place by a margin of two points over the Beavers and only a half game to the rear of Rhode Island Reds. The Eagles last night in New Haven. The Cubs have been stumbling a little late, and the fans were beginning to fear for their success. Always a cautious outfit, the Cubs came through when a defeat might have cost them a playoff berth.

While the Cubs were giving the Beavers the works, the Arrows crushed a full game closer to third place by shutting out Quebec Braves, 3 to 0 in Philadelphia.

With three games left, the Cubs are in second place by a margin of two points over the Beavers and only a half game to the rear of Rhode Island Reds.

George Patterson, the elongated right winger, and the pudgy Chexmer, who can step with the best of them when he wants to turn it on, did all the scoring for the Cubs against the Eagles.

"Pat" popped home three runs in the first period, and Maricle and Maricle had put the Eagles back in the game. Harker started to do his stuff, scoring twice in combination with Burkes.

Dunn in Philadelphia, "Deacon" White and Eddie Jeremiah are the talk of the town today. "Deacon" scored for the first Arrow goal in the second period, and then Deacon scored the length of the rink in the third chapter to beat Tim Baxter for another goal. In the fifth minute of this period Walter came through with his second goal, after taking a pass from Dodge Collins.

One young man with an obvious Harvard accent, went so far as to telephone the Associated Press he had heard that the editors of the Lincoln, Harvard undergraduate humor magazine, were responsible for Handstone Dan's disappearance. He proved shy about revealing his identity, however, nor would he be explicit about where he heard the news.

Elsewhere about Cambridge it was recalled that the disappearance of the famous Yale fence are at 40 years ago and the more recent kidnapping of the sacred codfish from its place of honor in the chamber of the State House of Representatives had been charged up to Harvard pranksters.

Yale officials today declined to point an accusing finger, but it was learned that a group of Harvard University swimmers were guests at the Ray Tompkins house last night. Athletic officials said that Handstone Dan was most guests and would make friends easily. They said, too, that the dog liked to ride in automobiles.

down over a glass of brew and exchange opinion.

We didn't start out with the intention of getting drunk or engaging in any lurid escapade. We wanted to talk baseball, and that's what we did, even though on occasions we indulged too freely before the season was over.

If we knew another club was to put up at a certain place, where we always headed, Boston and Churchill in New York were popular spots because there were to be found the Dodgers and Giants. When we met at either of these two famed restaurants of an evening, nobody could leave without hearing all he wanted to know about the strong and weak points of almost every player in the league.

OLD UN'S TEMPERAMENT

A youngster didn't "believe" unless he attended those "bull sessions" sessions. The veterans had no use for a newcomer who wasn't interested enough in the game to sit around at night learning all he could about it.

There was nothing further about our club house. They were conducted right out in the open of respectable places. And for every one that ended in a brawl, there were two that were conducted as peacefully as a prayer meeting. They rarely saw modern players grinning, but don't get the idea they are any more temperate than the old timer. They're merely more secretive. They and their swallows, at home, and it's usually here they talk. I prefer the old system of a few flaps of beer in public with plenty of baseball information as a chair.

The youngster today has four to go through his diamond career without ever gaining as much information as the old timer. We could pick up on just one of our "wild parties."

Most of the exploits my name is connected with happened while I was plumb sober.

Sure, I became wildly intoxicated at times. And I raised a lot of rumpus. And I wasn't always the wisest young broncho who had come on the baseball scene in a decade.

So we seem that I was occasionally connected with happened while I was plumb sober.

Charge me with any crime you want. I'll not protest.

But, if you're fair, you must admit I was doing my best as a baseball player who had to play the next afternoon, and reported in a state to play in the morning.

Al Mercer is today still New England heavyweight champion as a result of his victory over "Bull" Martin after 11, 21st, 1st, of the bout at the Arena. A back drop and body press gave Mercer the victory.

The "Bull" was clinging to the ropes when Mercer pined him down. Mercer crashed into the ropes and landed on his back. The little Mercer hopped on him and scored with the winning blow.

It was a typical Martin show with plenty of rough milking and several near kills. A dozen policemen at the ringside were kept busy maintaining order.

FAN CHALLENGES "BULL"
During one of the "Bull's" plunges from the ring to the floor of the arena, an irate fan threatened to take a walk at him. While the spectator held his right duke on the chest pressure, the left it about for Martin's jaw three policemen stepped into the argument and prevented what promised to develop into a swell fight.

Martin proved he has mastered his headlock. He used numerous headlocks to wear Martin down in the early stages of the contest. His amazing speed and knowledge of wrestling enabled him to offset Martin's rushes and get out of every tight spot.

Mercer rocked the "Bull" with a knee back particularly rough. Martin went down into a neutral position, pulling him up to the ropes, and Mercer kept taking him back to the ropes. A crowd of 3000 fans attended the show, and got particularly excited out of the downtown.

PLENTY OF FIGHTS
The police were called to hop into the ring to halt a fight between John Spelman and Gene Ladous. Spelman won the fall in 21st, 22nd with a top body press. Ladous then rushed Spelman, and the latter dropped the Frenchman with a right to the jaw. There was some free-fighting, and the police finally took a hand and restored order.

Tony Blane of Framingham won over Cliff Hunt of Nahant in 11th, 12th, using a flying knee to gain the victory.

Jim Wallis, former Holy Cross star, also knocked off a flying tackle to knock off Ed Moran of New York in 7th round.

George Saunders and Harry Smith were on even terms after 15 minutes of warfare.

PUNCHES REFERRED
Freddie Moran of Newport had roughhouse tactics to dispose of Mickey Roache of this city, with a body lift and slam in 14th, 15th, 16th.

The Gold Secret manhandled Fred Allen, winning with ease in 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th. The Gold Secret apparently was anxious to give value for his purse as he took five punches at Referee Al Pierotti after the contest ended.

"Rebel" Bob Russell of New York, I, gained a victory over R. L. Stewart of Lynn in 17th, 18th, 19th. Russell made Stewart quit when he counted with 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 32nd, 33rd, 34th, 35th, 36th, 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 42nd, 43rd, 44th, 45th, # LAWRENCE TIBBETT IS GIVEN CONTRACT TO MAKE TWO SCREEN MUSICAL COMEDIES

'Waiting for the Robert E. Lee' Will Be First for Opera Star on New Contract

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, March 15.—I will pay my fifty cents or dollar any time, wouldn't you, to hear Lawrence Tibbett sing in the movies? Edward Small figures you and I, dear public, just reflect the attitude of all the movie fans who have signed Tibbett for two screen musical comedies.

The first of these is "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," a very happy opera, written by E. Wolfe Gilbert and L. Koenig. The second will be "Adelphi," written by L. Koenig and L. Koenig. What with the popularity of musicals, well, these two ought to be a sellout in any Louella O. Parsons house at any time.

Adelphi Rogers Hyland can talk for herself when she comes to Hollywood. There have been so many reports that she and her husband, Dick Hyland, have agreed to go their separate ways that she has given her own matrimonial statement. Up to now she has said nothing, but when she gets to Hollywood and talks to her pals, maybe she will tell the truth. She is being brought on by Paramount to adapt the screen play, "A Son of Gunnes," based on an original by Julian Josephson. It is for Richard Arlen and will be his first vehicle when he comes home from Europe.

The story, "Mad Tatter" which Columbia has purchased for Jack Holt, is an original by Kurt Kemper, not to be confused with the stage play of the same name. Jack will play a deep sea diver who must dodge the flames on an oil-covered, blazing sea. She will after all the practice he has had dodging beautiful Hollywood ladies who constantly pursue him with matrimonial intent!

Just heard for the first time that the glamorous Anna Rice is the stepmother of a 14-year-old girl. Her husband, Dr. Eugene Frenkel, had two daughters by a previous marriage and these something interesting. The picture he made, "The Girl in the Case," is being well received in Boston, where it is regarded as whimsical and decidedly rural. Samuel Goldwyn put Dr. Frenkel to work producing this picture, while Miss Rice was busy on "Nana." There have been so many conflicting reports it is nice to know that the doctor is a movie.

Young Royalty Guided by Old Master Mimer

Greeta Garbo, playing the young ruler in "Queen Christina," has the advantage of tutelage under the eagle eye of that old master actor, C. Aubrey Smith. Here they are in one of the early scenes of the much talked of photodrama. The picture, which has its first popular prose showings at Loew's State, begins tomorrow, had Mamoulian for director.

Harp Recital Beautiful John Boles's Uptown Star

The 17-year-old tomorrow will feature "Beloved," with John Boles and Gloria Stuart. "Beloved" is a powerful, stirring picture of a poor, struggling American composer. The cast includes Dorothy Peterson, Lurline Gerson, Morgan Farley and Max March. The co-feature is Paramount's "Search for Beauty."

Emile Boreo Is Top Actor

Emile Boreo, distinguished European performer, provides a program of novelty songs and dances on the new Orpheum stage bill. His repertoire is always freshened with new material. His "Dance of the Wounded Soldier," which he created, is featured. Virginia Lee and Tommy Rafferty are next in "Dance Diversion," assisted by Adeline Beeson and Arthur Brower. Others on the bill are the Harris Boys with Lucette Allen in "Dancing Dances in Rhythmic Motion," Jones & Jones in "End of the Line and Let's Saunders."

Film 'Scandals'

The Metropolitan announces the film production, "Scandals," for the week starting Friday, March 16. It is the original "Scandals" picture taken to Hollywood. White also carried the staff of song writers, dance directors and technicians. The cast includes Jimmie Dunne, Alice Faye, Adrienne Ames, Cliff Edwards, Gregory Huttig, Dixie Dugger and Gertrude Natchez are a few of the principal players.

Concert Violinist

Harold Berkley, concert violinist, will have charge of violin study at the Smith College summer school, Northampton, beginning June 25, and will direct string ensemble playing, and the orchestra of the string orchestra.

Glorious

Carol Lombard, beautiful actress, star of "Beloved," which is featured on coming bill at Scullay and Koden.

Famed Mime in Recital

The box office at the Repertory has opened for the ticket sale for two performances to be given by Miriam Marmorein, American dancer and mime, tomorrow evening and Saturday afternoon. Miss Marmorein will be assisted by a concert group. Bostonians who are familiar with Miss Marmorein's little theater of the dance on Cape Cod during the summer months will welcome this opportunity to see her and her group in their only local recital this season. Miss Marmorein's program will include dramatic, mime and acrobatic numbers (illustrative of her theory that the dancer must portray the comic as well as the serious side of life).

Old Timer

Will Rogers in "David Harum" will be announced as the next feature for RKO Keiths, commencing Saturday to run for one week only.

The screen play, following closely the typically American theme of the old, cunning, cunning deal with the life of a shrewd and ruthless horse-trader. His dealings with the people in the small town in which he lives are cold-hearted and unfeeling. But a young man who is employed as a teller in the bank owned by the horse-trader, finds his own sympathy for the poor, and realizes that underneath his hard crust he has a soft heart. Because of his poor financial standing, the boy hesitates to propose marriage to a wealthy girl with whom he is deeply in love. The horse-trader's efforts to ruin the romance are unsuccessful. Upon the advice of the horse-trader, the young place all his money on a horse that he has entered in a race.

Hook Night at Old Howard

The Old Howard tonight put forth a genuine fun show in what is termed "Hook Night." At his performance Sam Cohn and his amateur troupe will contribute their share of merriment. Amateur will appear from Belmont, Charlestown and Everett, among other places.
